Interested in Pre-Health (including Pre-Med/Pre-Vet)?

Health professions schools want students who are broadly educated and well-rounded in achievement while pursuing rigorous course loads. Although many health professions schools focus on prerequisites in the science and math disciplines, there is no specific major required. You should pick something you find interesting, whether it is science-related or not. Once you know what major you would like to focus on for your Bachelor's degree, choose an AA Track that aligns with your Bachelor's degree goals.

Interested in Pre-Law?

Law schools are looking for applicants with a variety of majors and there is no preference given to a specific major. Students who select majors in which they are most interested traditionally enjoy the coursework and earn high grades. Majors that emphasize critical thinking and writing can be helpful for students pursuing law but students can also gain these skills through elective coursework. The only exception to the rule about majors is that students who would like to pursue Intellectual Property Law/Patent Law do need to have an undergraduate degree in science or engineering or at least take multiple courses in key science areas. Once you know what major you would like to focus on for your Bachelor's degree, choose an AA Track that aligns with your Bachelor's degree goals.

Major not listed?

If you know what you want to major in but don't see a track geared toward your intended transfer major, please choose AA-1018 General Studies and speak with your Academic Advisor.
