Quarters for Conservation

The Santa Fe College Teaching Zoo started a Quarters for Conservation (Q4C) program in 2016. The program is designed to increase our conservation budget and fulfill our commitment to conservation through the Association of Zoos and Aquariums (AZA) by raising money directly from guests. AZA zoos throughout the country have implemented Q4C, raising over $1 million annually. The Q4C initiative is expanding to include a portion of each paid program offered on grounds at the Teaching Zoo.

The objectives for the Q4C are to raise significant funds for additional in-situ conservation projects; communicate how each zoo visit helps wildlife conservation; and encourage guests to take everyday conservation actions by showing how they are connected to wildlife survival.
